Graduate Teaching Fellowship Awards Duke Kunshan University 2019 Spring Semester

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is offering up to six Graduate Teaching Fellowships for the 2019 spring semester. DKU is a new, Joint Venture University located in Kunshan China, about 30 km from Shanghai, China. DKU is a global University with faculty members and students from all parts of the world. In August 2018, DKU welcomed the inaugural class of its undergraduate degree program.

For more information about DKU please visit: <https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/en/about>

The Graduate Teaching Fellowships will support the emerging, interdisciplinary science and mathematics courses and curricula. Successful applicants will support instruction in biology, chemistry, computer science, mathematics, physics, and statistics. Instructional support includes assisting in teaching laboratory and recitation sections and working with students on course content. Course delivery is in English, including class periods, laboratories, and recitations.

The Fellowship is appropriate for graduate students in existing graduate programs who have completed their coursework and candidacy examinations and are now involved in research and writing. Also eligible are graduate students applying to, or admitted to, existing DKU graduate programs.

Initial appointments will be for spring semester, 2019. Appointments may be extended upon review of the fellow's performance and mutual agreement from the student, student's dissertation advisor, his/her home institution, and the hosting institution (DKU). The fellowship will include a tuition remission (PhD candidates) and stipend.

The application process is now open and will close October 31, or until the positions are filled. For questions about the GTF positions and application process, please contact:
